BACKGROUND

The war has been going on for 10 days and both sides are running low on supplies. Supply levels will be key to who wins the war. Many of our own ships have been intercepted before they could reach the port and we are struggling to transport the supplies that do get through because many bridges have been destroyed.

CURRENT SITUATION

A large delivery has come in by boat to Namp'o shipyard, a large enough delivery to keep the enemy front line supplied for atleast a month. The delivery has come in on several waves of cargo task force ships, the last of which is currently in port. By the time your package arrives we expect all the cargo to have been lifted off and placed in storage areas around the shipyard. If this delivery is successfully distributed it will surely signal the end of the campaign. The delivery consists of fuel (already pumped into oil tanks at the yard) and munitions stored in large orange crates. It is not necessary to destroy any ships since the delivery will already have been completed.

MISSION DETAILS

Weather – Wind: 237 deg @ 14 kts

Cloud: Clear, dispersed at target.

Temperature: -9

Visibility: 14nm excellent

Enemy – You may expect SA2s in the vicinity and of course the AAA Bt. which is the target of the strike flight. We don't know if there are going to be any enemy frigates at the port, although they are reported to be operating in the Korea bay. Near by airbases consist of mig-29As, mig-21Mbis, mig-17PFs and several variants of mig23s.

Friendly – Refer to pilots table above.

Route – All flights share common steerpoints and should be fenced in by steerpoint 3 and fenced out by steerpoint 8. target is at steerpoint 6.
