Re: Morale Booster

Clinton Comes To Korea!

Former President Clinton is to pay a visit to the area for Special Diplomatic Talks and is also scheduled to visit the troops from the xxx battalion in xxx as a morale booster following their recent heavy losses. A similar exercise was carried out two months ago and was greatly appreciated by the men with whom he met. Clinton surprised everyone by approaching an individual soldier and to his amazement, wished him a happy birthday!

Upon completion of the tour, you are to escort the former President back to Kimpo International, where he will transfer into AirForce One and make his journey back to the States.

On a more serious note, the DPRK have been broadcasting damaging propaganda via their TV Station in Osu-dong and P'yangnamjin, demonstrating strong support for the Taliban regime. In his address to the nation last Tuesday, President Bush reaffirmed his commitment to punish those who showed support for the Taliban and following that speech made a personal call direct to Col.Triton to seek assurance that he was making all efforts to silence the broadcasts from North Korea.

The DPRK have been transmitting a host of misleading images and damaging rhetoric and in order to reduce the growing opposition to the Afghanistan Campaign, we must take out two TV Stations in the north.

Air defences are not expected to be heavy but MiG Patrols are plentiful. Considerable distances will need to be covered, so refuelling tankers are aloft.
